Three Safety & Health Tracks consisting of nine informative workshops designed for Supervisors, Safety Professionals, Craftworkers and Company Leaders.

- Human Performance | Learn how the latest research is used to show how employees think while performing their daily tasks and how supervisors can utilize this information to create a safer worksite.
- Illicit Drugs in the Workplace | One of the most significant issues confronting Kentucky. Learn about this growing opioid epidemic in our workplace and ways to identify workers using opioids.
- Drones in Construction | Back by popular demand, this seminar will provide live demonstrations of how drones can be used for inspection purposes on your jobsite.
- Confined Space in Construction | Is your company up to speed on recent changes to the Construction Confined Space Standard? You will learn procedures to perform a safe confined space entry.
- Hand & Arm Protection | Learn about new product lines that will protect your employees from hand and arm injuries.
- Technology and the Connected Worker | Witness the latest PPE innovations that prevent accidents through warning systems designed into the device.
- Stanley Black & Decker | The new Silica Standard creates a complex web of compliance regulations. See demonstrations of how the latest line of tools/products protects your employees, your company and your bottom line.
- Aerial & Scissor Lift Safety | Acquire information designed to prevent accidents during the use of aerial lifts and scissor lifts on your construction sites.
- Rigging Selection & Inspection | Learn how to select the appropriate rigging for the task-at-hand and best practices to ensure your rigging is properly inspected.

Special Events include: Governor's Office of Highway Safety Distracted Driver Simulator, Wayne/Cat Heavy Equipment Simulator, Tioga-Suburban Propane Heater Demonstration

8:30 - 9:30 AM

Building Your Talent Pool for Future Growth:

During the past few years, a focus on the need to invest in the development of our people has been diverted. As contractors hire more people to support new work, we must recognize that some of our talented veterans left the industry and are not coming back. As we hire newer people with less experience, there is a significant need to train them, especially as Baby Boomers continue to retire at increasing rates. This workshop will:

- Examine training needs, challenges, concerns, and innovations and their impact on the construction industry in the past year;
- Identify the successful training and development strategies required to maximize performance and develop a culture of accountability;
- Utilize these techniques and strategies to advance talent development practices within your company;
- Observe what practices leading construction firms from across the country have adapted into their strategic plan.

10:00 - 11:00 AM

Succession Myths:

With baby boomers retiring at an astounding rate, the loss of experience, knowledge, and leadership is alarming. The need to be strategic in building your leadership bench is imperative when trying to navigate this rapidly changing workforce. By understanding the common pitfalls and myths associated with succession planning your company will be better prepared to endure and thrive through the changes. This workshop will provide insight into:

- Navigating leadership preparations for each working generation;
- Complications in succession planning and how to overcome them;
- How to simplify your succession process with our Peak Succession Model;
- Build an enduring organization with a strong team of successors.
